Thomas Maras grew up and began his independent art career in Luverne over 25 years ago. He continues to have a strong connection to Luverne's community through family and friends and has actively participated in sharing his artwork at local events since 1993.

His early Luverne art education exposed him to ceramics and he studied ceramics and glass in college at Worthington and Moorhead.

Since that time he has been blowing glass in the Minneapolis/St. Paul area and is currently making his work at The Minnesota Center for Glass Arts.
